

THANK YOU!

We rejoice in our partnership together as we proclaim Christ in our local congregations, around our synod, and throughout the world. Here are just a few examples of what we do together as the synod:

- When Grace Lutheran in Houston chose to close and restart as a new mission (Kindred), you as the synod helped make it happen.

You were there as the synod supported Ashley Dellagiacoma through candidacy, seminary, and her call to Kindred. As Kindred launched, you shared resources and supported the equipping of Kindred and its leadership for their new ministry. Thank you!

- When floods hit the Houston area in early 2016, you as the synod were there.

The synod's Disaster Response Team assessed the needs, coordinated donations, connected with local Lutheran congregations, ecumenical partners, and city and county agencies, and provided a clearinghouse for services and resources for disaster response and recovery. Thank you!

- When the shootings took place in Baton Rouge, you as the synod were there.

Through synod and churchwide staff, we visited with local neighbors, met with ecumenical partners, and deliberated with our fellow Lutherans in southern Louisiana as we discerned, prayed, and took steps to act justly and peacefully in troubling times such as these. Thank you!

We are stronger when we are church together.
Your congregation's partnership makes ministry happen
that couldn't happen without your support.
Thank you for your generosity.

THANK YOU!

We rejoice in our partnership together as we proclaim Christ in our local congregations, around our synod, and throughout the world. Here are just a few examples of what we do together as the synod:

- When Grace Lutheran in Houston chose to close and restart as a new mission (Kindred), you as the synod helped make it happen.

You were there as the synod supported Ashley Dellagiacoma through candidacy, seminary, and her call to Kindred. As Kindred launched, you shared resources and supported the equipping of Kindred and its leadership for their new ministry. Thank you!

- When floods hit the Houston area in early 2016, you as the synod were there.

The synod's Disaster Response Team assessed the needs, coordinated donations, connected with local Lutheran congregations, ecumenical partners, and city and county agencies, and provided a clearinghouse for services and resources for disaster response and recovery. Thank you!

- When the shootings took place in Baton Rouge, you as the synod were there.

Through synod and churchwide staff, we visited with local neighbors, met with ecumenical partners, and deliberated with our fellow Lutherans in southern Louisiana as we discerned, prayed, and took steps to act justly and peacefully in troubling times such as these. Thank you!

We are stronger when we are church together.
Your congregation's partnership makes ministry happen
that couldn't happen without your support.
Thank you for your generosity.